The French are almost near enough to see through Lens.

Capt. Von Papen would be more pleasing as a military detache of the German embassy.

Ambassador Von Bernstorff is strangely silent just at this time. His 10 days of waiting are about up.

Henry Ford announces he will give up the submarine business. In other words, he cannot afford to scatter his efforts. It is a wise decision.

That the Burlington Free Press is moving along with the current of big things is indicated by the installation of a new Hoe printing press capable of turning out a paper of 24 pages. We congratulate the contemporary on this evidence of its progressiveness.

Are your bridges safe? The accident of Thursday in the town of Northfield, where two men, two horses and a load of wood were precipitated to the bottom of a brook, is warning enough that selectmen of towns cannot afford to let the matter of inspection of bridges go by default. What about it, you selectmen, or possibly, you road commissioners?

Some marvellous advances have been made in wireless telephony on the heels of equally wonderful progress in wireless telegraphy, promising to revolutionize long-distance communication; but the discoveries leave something to be desired. At the present stage of the development of both the wireless systems there is no known way to prevent the stealing of messages as they travel through the air, it being possible for any skillful operator to "break in" and receive the messages as they pass through the air. How to prevent such interruption of service, or rather infringement of service, is the next great problem which faces the scientists who have been going ahead so remarkably during the past few years. It may seem impossible of accomplishment that man can devise effective means to prevent the interference with messages, that is, means other than the purely artificial preventives through application of law to the offenders; but so great have been the discoveries already made that there is hope the way will be revealed to secure the privacy of communication. It is the next great problem in wireless communication.

A BAD PIECE OF BUSINESS.

The autoist in the northern part of the state who drove along after smashing into a team; throwing the driver into the road unconscious and causing the equines to run away so that one of the animals broke a foreleg and the wagon was broken; that autoist deserves to be brought to time. His act in colliding with the team was far less reprehensible than his hurried departure from the scene without waiting to determine the extent of the injuries of the driver of the team. The victim of the accident lay unconscious in the road for some time, being found by a person coming along the highway; and it was determined later that he had sustained a fracture of one arm and the fracture of three ribs besides other injuries. The act of the automobilist cannot be censured too much. It was a very bad piece of business. We trust that the state department which has to deal with the regulation of motor vehicles will take up the matter and follow the case vigorously in an endeavor to determine the party, if such action has not already been taken.

REASONS FOR ENLISTMENT.

"So come along then, Sonny, and join now," is the appeal which is made in some quarters for recruits for the British army. Back of that appeal is a most curious collection of reasons why "sonny" should enlist. By reference to the copy of a recruiting placard reproduced in the American press we find that the four arguments in favor of enlistment are, briefly stated, as follows: Because it is a "grand thing" to shoulder arms while all the world is fighting and pitch in with the rest; because "your girl will really be proud of you";

"De reason some of us don't get along," said Uncle Eben, "is dat we sit down dreaming of automobiles when we ought to be pushing our wheelbarrow."

If you are a pusher, here are suits that will help you and push you into the front ranks of the good lookers.

We Clean, Press, and Repair Clothing

because in the years to come your children will like to hear the story of the war from your own lips; because the khaki of the British army makes a fellow look good and trim. There, almost word for word, are the reasons advanced why the still recalcitrant youth of Great Britain should offer themselves for service in the "Great War."

Strangely enough, not a single reference is made in that appeal to the greatest of all reasons (supposedly so) for volunteer service—the feeling of patriotism for one's country. Not a word is said about the spirit of loyalty which one should have for his country's cause. Every allusion to the higher motives is overlooked. The whole appeal is to the more shallow side of mankind, viz., the pride one might take in his "girl's" approval, the pride which one may have in relating personal experiences of the war, the pride in one's personal appearance in the military uniform, the ebullition of spirits of being with the crowd and doing as the other fellow is doing. Perhaps the day of appeal to patriotism is gone by. Perhaps it is a worn out notion that men fight for their country. Perhaps men are ready to sacrifice their lives under the impetus of a desire for purely personal aggrandizement. But one can scarcely think that such a new day has arrived. One still holds to the belief that patriotism still reigns in part. And we should say that one reason why Great Britain has been feverishly clamoring for more enlistments is because the appeals, like the one quoted, have been directed toward the baser side of human kind rather than to the lofty. Such specious arguments as advanced by the placard in question are too thin for the average man.

The Softer Thing.

"Why not speak to papa now? There he goes in the billiard room."

"Wait till he goes to the library. I'd sooner be hit with a book than a billiard ball."—Puck.

A Saving Anyway.

EAST ORANGE

With saddened hearts the people of this community gathered at the church at 2:30 p. m. Friday, to pay their last loving tribute to Jessie, the 12-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hutchinson. She was taken suddenly ill while at school on Wednesday last week, and on Sunday it was thought necessary by her physician to take her to the hospital, which they did. Shortly after her arrival at the Mary Fletcher hospital, she underwent an operation for appendicitis, what proved to be a very serious case, and on Monday she passed peacefully to rest, her father and sister, Viola, being with her to the last. She was a bright, active girl, whose winsome ways endeared her to all who knew her, and while it seems sad that her young life should thus be cut short, there is consolation in the thought

"She has what we are wanting. She sees what we believe. The sins of earth so haunting. Have there no power to grieve; Safe in her Savior's keeping. Who sent her calm release; 'Tis only we are weeping. She dwells in perfect peace."

There was a profusion of beautiful flowers which testified to love which all held for her, among which were a cluster of rose buds from her teacher and schoolmates, as a tribute of their respect. Four of her schoolmates of former years, two of them cousins of the deceased, were bearers, Delbert and Glenn Hutchinson.

Earl Prescott and Otto Simpson. Rev. P. K. Mosk of West Topsham spoke words of comfort to the grief stricken family and friends. Burial was in the family lot in the village cemetery. She leaves to mourn her loss, besides her parents, three sisters, Viola, Abbie and Bertha, and a little brother, Clyde, and other relatives, besides a host of friends. Much sympathy is felt for the family in their great sorrow.

E. L. Sanborn was in Barre Friday on business.

Charles Currier and Merrill Eastman of Barre were at the sister's, Mrs. Myra Eastman, Thursday.

Mrs. Clinton Bowen and little daughter of Corinth were at A. R. Beede's Thursday.

F. A. Burroughs was in East Corinth Thursday, being called there on town business.

John Clark of West Topsham is in the place threshing for several of the farmers here.

Mr. and Mrs. Ora Hutchinson went to Vershire Friday night, being called there on account of the serious condition of Mrs. Hutchinson's mother, Mrs. Fashley, who is failing fast.

There were several from Bradford, Barre and other towns here to attend the funeral of Miss Jessie Hutchinson Friday.

Mrs. David Abair and Mrs. Williams of West Topsham were callers at Angelo Beede's Friday.

Bagley Abbott of East Corinth was at James Rouhan's Friday.

A representative of the Hoe Saw Co.,

from New York City, visited A. R. Beede recently.

Mrs. Earl Dickey was in East Barre with relatives for the week end.

Barre is Congratulated.

Three cheers for Barre—prosperous, growing, Barre—Barre which is not only upbuilding but is materially assisting in building its portion of Vermont.

And our congratulations are based on figures which are unavailable, for they have been collected and published by the United States census bureau. * * * * The showing, is on the whole an excellent one, justifying ample congratulations for the present and the brightest hopes for the future.

Burlington bids its sister city all hail—Burlington News.
